Dr. Bernhold Schmid (b.schmid@musikhist.badw.de)

(1) Submitting a text

The preferred file-format is as a Microsoft Word document. Submissions should include:

- the text of the submission
- figures, tables, and musical examples as separate documents; each should be provided with a clear caption. For tables, please use table formatting in Word. If possible, music-examples should be submitted as Sibelius or Finale files AND as .pdf files. Failing that, they may be submitted as .pdf or image files (.tiff or .jpeg, 1200 dpi).
- a short abstract (between 100 and 250 words)
- full contact information of the author
- brief biographical details (around 60 words)

The authors (and not the editors) are responsible for obtaining copyright permission of the documents they are using.

(2) The format of the submitted articles should conform to the following rules:

The title should be in normal type, beginning all important words with a capital letter (subheadings within the article should also observe this format). The author's name should be on a separate line under the title (unless anonymous review is requested, in which case the author's name should be omitted).

Footnote numbers should follow punctuation signs (without a space) and should not be put in brackets. An initial acknowledgement note should be unnumbered, and marked with *.

Single high quotation marks are used wherever possible. Double quotation marks should only be used inside quotations. Low quotation marks should never be used.

Citations: Every extended citation (60 words or more) should be in a paragraph of its own, indented (1 cm from left-hand margin), and preceded and followed by a blank line. Omissions within citations should be indicated with three dots, thus: '...'. Citations shorter than 60 words should be embedded within the text, and enclosed in single quotes. Please do not use italics.

Letters used for musical notes should be in italics. Upper or lower case and numerals are used to indicate the octave, e.g. a^1 ; A . Exact pitches follow the modified Helmholtz system: middle C = c^1 .

Indicate musical symbols according to the codes listed at the end of this style-sheet. Should a symbol be required which is not included in the list, then place as complete an explanation of the sign as necessary between curly brackets.

When note-values are explained in words, the British system is followed: ‘crotchet’, not ‘quarter-note’, etc.

Spelling: British spelling is used: ‘centre’, not ‘center’, etc.; ‘-ize’ is preferred to ‘-ise’, except in cases where only the latter is possible (revise, surprise, etc.).

Spaces: There should be a single space behind every punctuation mark, and no space in front.

In lists of more than two items, a comma should precede the final ‘and’.

Pairs of numbers (bars, pages, years, etc.) should observe the following format (i.e., two digits in the second number of the pair, omitting unnecessary zeroes): bb. 20–8 / bb. 100–3 / but bb. 110–17; Gilles Binchois (c. 1400–60). Long hyphens, and no spaces, should be used between the two numbers of the pair.

Numbers up to one hundred should be spelt out in words. So too should century-designations, e.g., ‘The music of the fifteenth century’.

Dates should observe the following format: ‘15 September 1523’.

Italics should be used for titles (treatises, prints, pieces, etc.).

With embedded clauses offset with a dash, an ‘en’ dash is used, with spaces either side: ‘Josquin’s mass for Duke Ercole – the Missa Hercules Dux Ferrariae – was copied into the source in 1523’.

(3) Non-running-text parts of articles are governed by the rules below:

Naming: Only musical examples in modern notation should be called ‘Example’. All other illustrative material, such as photographic reproductions, line drawings, and stemmata are called ‘Figure’. Text that is formatted in at least two rows and two columns is called ‘Table’. Tables may include some non-text elements.

All non-running-text parts of an article should have a caption, except short musical examples and small figures that may be considered part of a sentence. Captions should not have footnotes. Captions should observe the following format: Example 3. Josquin des Prez, Nymphes des bois, bb. 1–12.

References to non-running-text parts should include the category in full (with initial capital), followed by the number. Please indicate where the example should be inserted.
